

Phoebe Melchior (she/her) is a rising Junior from New Jersey. During her summer, she is working as a Camp Counselor at the Watershed Institute, a science and nature based summer camp. She was a co-founder of the Mentorship Club at her high school which helped freshmen and new students feel comfortable and has been a member of the Doctors Without Borders Club as well. She has been very active in community service by doing fundraisers for Doctors Without Borders, tutoring a middle Schooler through Study Engine, and volunteering at Girls in White Coats. Phoebe loves science and hopes to be a doctor herself one day. She plays tennis both in and out of school and runs track in the spring.
